WILTON.

The November meeting of the Wilton W.I. was held in Grange Hall, Wilton, on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 13. The president presiding, the meeting opened with the singing of the Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer in Unison. The roll call was answered by "What I would do if I woke up some morning with all the money I could spend." Many very foolish suggestions were given. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Several small bills were paid.

An excellent paper on current events was prepared and given by Miss Helen Babcock. A paper entitled "How much are you worth ?" was given by the secretary, Mrs. Archie Simmons. This paper proved most interesting and valuable. The roll call was carried that we have Mr. Laughland, of Napanee, show us pictures in the near future, also to have a social evening at the same time.

An excellent report of the Kingston convention was given by our delegates, Misses Helen Huff and Beatrice Forsyth. These girls certainly put forth every effort to bring us a clear view of what happened at each session and on each day of the convention.

The very able president, Mrs. W. C. Snider, then gave a demonstration on the making of Paper Sweet Peas. This was indeed very instructive.

It was decided to hold our December meeting in the hall, but the other winter meetings will be in the homes of some members. The meeting closed with "God Save the King" and the social half hour followed.

RICHMOND MINUTES

Council met in the Town Hall, Selby, on Nov. 5th, 1928.

The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

Moved by A. L. Oliver, seconded by H. Windover, that By-law No. 766, re quarantine of dogs in the Township of Richmond, be and is hereby rescinded. Carried.

Moved by S. J. Mowers, seconded by A. H. Oliver, that Road Pay Sheets for month of October, amounting to $910.82, be passed and cheques issued to various men on pay list.

Treasurer reported $158.00 received from ditch accounts.

At next meeting on Dec. 4th, all accounts must be in, in order to close the books for the year.

Council was adjourned.

H. A. WOOD, Clerk.

DESERONTO.

Miss V. R. Merrill, of Cobourg, called on friends in town on Sunday last.

Misses J. Hines and Miss Jessie Hines spent Thanksgiving with friends in Adolphustown.

Miss Evelyn Hall ,of Toronto, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. J. H. Hall.

Mr. James McKinney, Ottawa, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. J. Dunn and Mr. Dunn.

Mrs. Burnham, of Brockville, is the guest of Mr .and Mrs. W. R. Burnham, Thomas street.

Miss E. Long spent the week-end at her home in Napanee.

The High School pupils are practising for their commencement exercises, which take place on Friday evening, Nov. 23rd.

A miscellaneous shower in aid of the Ladies' Guild of St. Mark's Church bazaar will be held at the home of Mrs. William Seals on Wednesday evening next, November 21st.

The regular meeting of the Home and School Association was held in the Public School on Friday afternoon at 3.45, the president, Mrs. R. W. Burnham, in the chair. After the regular business, refreshments were served.

Messrs. Frank and William Whitton, W. Amey and Charles Thompson returned on Friday from a hunting trip.

Mr. Ed. Dorey left on Monday for Oshawa, where he has secured a position with the General Motors.

CAMDEN EAST.

The November meeting of Camden East Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Boulton on Friday afternoon the second. There were twelve members and three visitors present.

After the opening Ode and prayer, each answered the roll call by showing a sample of an inexpensive Christmas gift. These were very interesting and included handkerchiefs, handkerchief holders and novelty bags for holding soiled handkerchiefs, centrepieces, towels, aprons, containers for pot holders, dusters, powder cans, covers made of dolls head and crepe paper, and crochet mat made of old stockings.

The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Correspondence was dealt with as follows: An invitation to attend the Yarker Women's November meeting was accepted, and $5 was voted to the Navy League.

Mrs. E. Wright, of Violet Inlet, read a very interesting and instructive paper on "Surgical Emergencies," and Mrs. A. Robinson read a well-prepared paper on "The League of Nations." This paper certainly gave the members a better idea of the League and its objects.

The meeting came to a close by the singing of the National Anthem, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and committee.

The next meeting will be in the evening of December seventh at the home of Mrs. Harold Huff.

APPROACHING.

Advertisements are beginning to appear with decorations of holy and mistetoe and smiling face of Santa Claus. To the observant these ad frescoes tell their own story, give their own warning, hint at the important business from which none is barred and in which sooner or later everybody will be engaged.

In other words, Christmas shopping. The holiday is little more than a month ahead, fewer shopping days than fifty by a good deal. In no time these days will pass. The natural procrastinator will wait until Christmas Eve when store aisles will be crowded by other procrastinators, stocks picked out, clerks weary, customers in a flutter, clocks ticking, time's rapid pace, and the sense the reminders of today have been neglected.

Every year more sensible persons do their Christmas shopping early. They reap all the advantages in a variety of selection and leisure of choice and service. Christmas Eve comes they can proceed about their last-minute holiday tasks orderly, while the others fume and sputter.

Canadians are a great people never to do today what can be done tomorrow. The postmaster has urged early posting of Christmas mail, but the last days will probably be bigger than ever. The train leaves at 5.15, but the cars do not fill until 5.14. We get there, even if we are a last-minute nation, but it is at a tremendous cost of physical energy and mental upsets. The Christmas shopping season is merely one phase of a national temperament.

CHICKEN DINNER HELD AT NAPANEE

In re-opening the newly renovated dining hall of their church, the Ladies' Aid of Trinity Church held what proved to be the most largely attended chicken dinner held in connection with the church for many years.

The very highest credit is due to the ladies' organization and its directors for the orderliness of the arrangements and the excellence of the dinner service.

Dinner was served to not less than five hundred and fifty people during the evening.

Following the dinner a concert was held in the auditorium of the church, at which a large and appreciative audience was entertained in listening to the following program, presented by artists of Napanee and district: Instrumental duet, piano and organ, Minuet in A flat, Nevin, Mrs. J. E. Madden and Mr. A. Kendall; reading, "It takes a heap of living," Guest, Miss Jean Paul; ladies trio and chorus, (a) "Lullaby," Godard (b) "Mother My Dear," Trehaone, Mrs. Harry Pawson, Miss Nina McKim, Mrs. F. B. Mills, Mrs. J. E. Madden; Miss Florence Hall, Miss Susie Shorey; duet, "I Would That My Love," Mendelssohn, Mrs. F. B. Mills, Miss Nina McKim; vocal solos, (a) "The Nightingales of Lincoln Inn," Oliver, (b) "I Know of Two Bright Eyes," Clutsam, Mr. J. Cadwell; violin solo, Hymne a Sainte Cecile, Guonod, Mrs. Cameron Wilson; organ solo, "Toccata in D" Kinder, Mrs. J. E. Madden; vocal solos, (a) "A Song of the Lass," Gaines, (b) "Elf and Fairy," Densmore, Mrs. J. Eppiett; mixed quartette (a) "O Hush Thee My Baby," Sullivan, (b) "Loch Lomond," Mrs. Eppiett, Miss B. Kane, Mr. J. Caldwell, Mr. C. Waite.

The concert was under the direction of Mr. Percy Kendall, L.R.A.M., recently appointed organist and choir master of Trinity Church, who won unanimous praise with the program, the first presented under his supervision since his coming to Napanee.

STELLA.

That Amherst Island will be granted its application for a ferry, and that ferry service will be established between the Island and the mainland, are established facts, in the opinion of the reeve of the township, A. Hitchins.

Since the vote was taken some weeks ago several rumors became prevalent on the Island that local officials at Toronto would not consider the application on the grounds that they did not approve of the type of boat which was to be built. The main reason for these rumors being circulated, it appears, was the fact that the Minister of Highways G. S. Henry, was away on a vacation, and has only recently returned, with the result that the matter has been resting at Toronto, awaiting the approval of the department.

The general opinion of the residents is that a ferry will fill a long-needed want, this question having been discussed pro and con for the past few years. The main cause for agitation towards the acquiring of a ferry, however, is the large number of automobiles who are owned on the Island, there being eighty machines at the present time and before another year has passed the number will have increased considerably. The bone of contention, on the part of the automobile owners, is that when he gets an automobile he has no way of crossing to the mainland, where he could make considerable more use of his car.

The proposed ferry will cost in the neighborhood of $21,500 to build, and will be seventy-five feet long and have a twenty-foot beam. During the course of building, the vessel will have to undergo three inspections. The first inspection will take place when the frame is built; the second, when the planking is completed; and the final inspection will be given to the boat when it is completed. It is estimated that it will take four months to build and will be made of steel and wood. After looking over several sites, it was decided that Conlin's Bay was perfect for the best advantage in the process of building.

The County Council is holding in trust for Amherst Island township, a sum of over $6,300.00, which is to be used toward the building of the vessel, and the contract the government has agreed to go fifty-fifty towards the building of the vessel, and if found that should the ferry not be able to pay for the operating expenses and go in debt, the government will also wipe out half of the debt.

All the plans that have been made are dependent upon the approval of the Highways association, the application, and should it do so, there are several minor matters to be discussed in reference to the drawing up of a schedule, etc. In the meantime, the residents of the Island are looking forward optimistically to the time when they will have ferry service of their own, which venture is considered, at least, worthy of a trial.

On Tuesday, Nov. 13th, a most impressive service was held by the Women's Institute, observing Armistice and Thanksgiving. Loynes, in a few well chosen words recalled the events of Armistice, just 10 years ago. Mrs. Geo. Tustin, who lately returned from Europe, in her usual bright, interesting manner, gave a travelogue through the many countries she visited. Amusing incidents experienced by her were enjoyed by all. Especially interesting was her narration of her visit to battlefields and cemetries in France. The Arch of Triumph of white marble, on which 40,000 names are inscribed is a monument of great beauty. SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By CHARLES G. TRUMBULL, Litt.D.
(Editor of The Sunday School Times).

THE PRAYERS OF PAUL.

Sunday, Nov. 25.—Acts 20:36-38; Romans 1:8-10; Ephesians 1:15-23, 3:14-21; 1 Thess. 1:2-5.

Golden Text—Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks. (1 Thess. 5:16-18.)

The prayers of Paul open up one of the most wonderful treasure houses of Scripture that we can possibly study. They cannot be exhausted in a single lesson; the five prayers chosen for this study by no means cover all that the New Testament tells of the great apostle's prayers.

How much did Paul pray? How often did he pray? The question might make an interesting class discussion. Spurgeon was once asked how often he prayed. After thinking a moment, he said that he did not believe that more than twenty minutes elapsed at any time during his waking hours that he was not consciously talking with God. If Spurgeon could say that, what might Paul have said?

We know that Paul commanded by inspiration, "Pray without ceasing." And Paul did not preach beyond his experience. His life, after he came to know and love and serve the Lord, must have been peculiarly a life of ceaseless prayer.

And yet this same apostle wrote, by inspiration: "We know not what we should pray for as we ought; but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered." (Rom. 8:26.) So Paul recognized limitations of his own prayers, while he rejoiced in such a prayer life as perhaps few other Christians have ever known.

He led up to prayers. As he left certain of his Christian friends for the last time on earth, "he kneeled down and prayed with them all. And they all wept sore and fell on Paul's neck and kissed him." (Acts 20:36, 37.) What a prayer of loving fellowship that must have been! Let us never forget that there are blessings in fellowship prayer that cannot be had in private prayer. And, equally, let us never forget that there are blessings in private prayer that cannot be had in fellowship prayer. The normal Christian life needs prayer of both kinds. There must have been prayers that the apostle offered, over and over again, but were too personal, too intimate, too sacredly between himself alone and God, ever to be recorded in the inspired Scriptures.

His praying included thanksgiving, probably always, for he writes: "In everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." (Phil. 4:6.) And to his Christian friends at Rome he writes: "I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all."

Paul practiced importunate prayer, even as the Lord commanded "that men ought always to pray, and not to faint." (Luke 18:1.) For Paul called on God as his witness "that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers."

His prayer at the end of the first chapter of Ephesians is one of the most remarkable in all the Scriptures. Again his thanksgiving is mentioned; then he goes on in a prayer that every child of God may take to himself, pleading the five prayers chosen for this study by no means cover all that the New Testament tells of the great apostle's prayers.

this.

In the last of the five prayers of this lesson, Paul writes to his Thessalonian Christian friends not only that he makes mention of them in his prayers, but that he remembers without ceasing their work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ. Suppose we prayed for all our Christian friends in that way. When we are tempted to criticize them, or get impatient with them, suppose we begin to pray for them, with thanksgiving, bringing before God in prayer their work of faith, their labor of love, and their patience of hope in Christ. Is it not possible that both their lives and our own might be so greatly changed for the better that people would begin to wonder what was happening? Surely this is a good way to pray for revival.

COMMUNION.

A little talk with Jesus,
How it smoothes the rugged road!
How it seems to help me onward,
When I faint beneath my load.
When my heart is crushed with sorrow,
And mine eyes with tears are dim,
There's nought can yield me comfort
Like a little talk with Him.

I tell Him I am weary,
And I fain would be at rest,
That I'm daily, hourly longing
For a home upon his breast;
And He answers me so sweetly,
In tones of tend'rest love—
"I am coming soon to take thee
To my happy home above."

Ah, this is what I'm wanting,
His lovely face to see;
And I'm not afraid to say it,
I know He's wanting me;
He gave His life a ransom
To make me all His own,
And He can't forget His promise
To me, His purchased one.

I know the way is dreary
To yonder far-off clime,
But a little talk with Jesus
Will while away the time.
And yet the more I know Him,
And all His grace explore,
It only seals me longing
To know Him more and more.

I cannot live without Him,
Nor would I if I could;
He is my daily portion,
My medicine and my food.
He's altogether lovely,
None can with Him compare—
The chief among ten thousand,
The fairest of the fair.

I often feel impatient
And mourn His long delay,
And glory in the knowledge
That such a hope is mine.
Then in my Father's dwelling,
Where "many mansions" be,
I'll sweetly talk with Jesus
And He shall talk with me.

A Strong Man Trick.

Strong men on the music - hall stage are fond of tying on their backs and having placed on the chest an anvil, which is subjected to blows from a heavy sledgehammer. As a "turn" it invariably creates astonishment, but only a man could do it, provided he were strong enough in the first place to support the heavy anvil. The blows inflicted by the sledge-hammer are terrific.

Scientists explain this by what is known as action and reaction, which are always equal. The anvil strikes the hammer as forcibly as the hammer strikes the anvil and should the anvil be heavier than the hammer, it will not be moved. Suppose the hammer weighs 10 pounds and moves with a velocity of 16 feet per second. It will strike the anvil with a force of 160 pounds; but the anvil, perhaps, weighs 220 pounds, and in consequence will not be moved. Thus the "strong" man is able to receive the weight of the blows without discomfort.

More than 50,000 acres of Indian lands, which include some of the best agricultural areas in the Province of Ontario, are likely to be sold at auction in the near future. The action will in all probability follow a survey that is being made in the north country by W. Morris, Inspector of Indian Agencies for the three western provinces, with headquarters at Regina.

A new industry—badger farming—may be started in Saskatchewan by John Rothenberger, farmer, of Vanguard. Last spring Mr. Rothenberger caught a badger and took it home. He built a large pen about 15 feet long and 4 feet wide. During summer he fed the badgers until they are now quite tame, and are said to be larger than any badger running wild. Their coats are in excellent condition and offers of $18 for each skin have been received.

A new world record was set by the Canadian Pacific Railway recently when a train of grain more than a mile in length was operated between Medicine Hat and Arcola, Saskatchewan. It was the longest and heaviest grain train in history, consisting of 135 loaded grain cars, each approximately 40 feet in length, a water car, a caboose and engine. The gross weight was 8,722 tons and the total contents of the cars were 202,000 bushels of grain.

The enthusiasm of the citizens of Québec is so infectious that it is an easy matter to interest visitors in "sport," states Lt. G. Strathdee, winter sports manager of the Chateau Frontenac, in giving a forecast of this winter's programme. Skating, skiing and tobogganing will be in full swing as usual; the dog derby will most certainly take place; and the ice carnivals and storming of the citadel will probably be featured again he said. Mr. Strathdee mentioned the splendid co-operation given the winter activities at the Chateau Frontenac by the Québec Winter Sports Association.

The number of disciples of Izaak Walton, Canadian and American, who have plied rod and reel in Canadian waters during the past season is greater than ever before, states A. O. Seymour, general tourist agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal in announcing the winners of the Ontario bungalow camp fishing trophy competitions. Phillip Peterman of Lauriun, Michigan, won the Nipigon River contest for speckled trout, Edmund Siechbart of Chicago won the French River "muskey" prize, and Theodore Kipp of Winnipeg caught the largest bass entered in the Devil's Gap camp competition.

England will have enough Canadian apples shortly to keep the doctor away for the next year, if there is any truth in the rumors, as ships sailing for the old country this autumn are carrying many boxes of their apples shipped by Canadian their friends overseas. This has been the custom for the past few years and accord ing to J. B. Martin, manager of the foreign department of the Canadian Pacific Express Company is becoming increasingly popular so great has been the demand for fresh Canadian apples each autumn for shipment to England that express companies have standard size boxes for shipping and special low rates are granted by the express company.

Straw Hats In Manila.

Straw hats are sure to fall in price in Manila. Chinese and Japanese are competing for the trade, and the odds at this writing are on the Chinese. The Japanese import their hats, but the Chinese, carrying out the spirit of the stubborn boycott of Nippon over the Tsinan Incident earlier in the year, have established a factory in Manila and make their hats right there, only bringing in some of the materials. When one doesn't want a straw hat in the islands he does want an umbrella, so the factory turns out both hats and umbrellas. One of the largest factories in the islands, it makes daily 1,000 straw hats, 1,000 felt hats and 100 dozen umbrellas. Its capital is $250,000, and it completes directly with a Swiss factory of the same nature.

Nickel Legs on Paris Chairs.

A new form of furniture has become popular in France, and it is being widely bought for office and home use.

The novelty lies in the use of nickel tubes for the framework of chairs, tables and cupboards. There are no legs, in the ordinary sense, to this furniture. The nickel tubes, bent flat, support the chairs and tables and enable them to slip along the floor better than castors. The office chairs are strips of leather, or leather substitute, slipped over the metal tubes to form the seat and back.

Armchairs are more complicated, elastic bands forming the body and the back, which give to the pressure of the body.

So far— and yet so near!

"I must call John by Long Distance and let him know I got here all right. Then neither of us will be worrying. It's wonderful to be able to visit you like this, and yet keep as close touch with home as if I were there. What must it have been like in the old days, before Long Distance made it possible?"

"I'll place the call for you while you are taking off your wraps."

"That will be fine. Just ask for our number, 124, so I'll get the cheaper Station-to-Station rate. In a couple of days I'll call up again, in the evening, so I can have a few words with the children, too. The Evening Rate after 8.30 is really very low."

HAS FAR-REACHING EFFECTS

Road Courtesy Has Decreased Auto Fatalities—Elimination of Grade Crossings.

A striking proof of the far-reaching effects of courtesy as brought into play on crowded traffic highways is illustrated in a recent report of the American Road Builders' Association, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., which has just reached our desk, says an article in the Toronto Globe. The report, by the way, indulges in a very optimistic attitude which show that during the past ten years 20,427 persons have been killed and 57,625 seriously injured in highway grade crossing accidents on major steam railroads. These figures do not include grade crossing accidents occurring on electric railroads or on electric and oil lines.

The association in a circular addressed to its members declares that, "while the number of fatalities has increased steadily since 1913 the comparative number of deaths has been decreased." In 1913 a total of 3,657 persons were killed in these accidents, as compared with 3,371 in 1927. In 1927 there was .94 persons killed per 10,000 motor vehicles, as compared with 1.81 persons in 1913.

The decrease in highway grade crossing fatalities, according to the report, has been the result of educational measures taken by railroads and co-operating organizations, the American Road Builders' Association declares. "A continued reduction is dependent upon the practice of caution on the part of motor vehicle drivers. Courtesy and caution are the two fundamentals which will eventually bring a noteworthy decrease in all types of highway accidents.

"The two major factors which will contribute toward better conditions at the railroad grade crossings are crossing elimination and individual education. There are approximately 207,000 unprotected grade crossings on major steam railroads alone. It is economically impossible to completely eliminate these crossings within the very near future. It is possible, however, to eliminate the more dangerous crossings and at the same time continue the education of the motoring public in the value of courtesy and caution when approaching these hazards.

"It is a regrettable fact," the Road Builders Association continues, "that 238 persons were killed at grade crossings last year as a result of running into the side of moving trains. This demonstrates the gross negligence on the part of some drivers when approaching dangerous crossings." Most inexcusable deaths result from attempts to beat trains to a crossing or approaching at a high speed where the view is obstructed in the least degree. Unnecessary haste has been the cause of many fatalities.

The association urged highway departments and railroads to continue the elimination of grade crossings as fast as economic conditions permit.

"More important," the statement adds, "is the practice of the simple code of courtesy and caution on the part of every individual. The engineer of a steam locomotive is virtually powerless to avert an accident when a motor car obstructs the right of way. The avoidance of accidents is the duty of the driver of the motor car."

In summarizing grade crossing conditions on major steam railroads, the American Road Builders' Association states that at the beginning of 1927 there were 206,532 unprotected crossings in the United States; 6,145 crossings were protected by gates, 7,760 were guarded by watchmen, 6,421 had both audible and visible signals only 5,308 were guarded by audible signals only, and 2,204 had visible signals only. Of the 235,138 grade crossings in the United States, only 27,747 had any kind of protection.

German Shipbuilding Active.

Statistics for the second quarter of 1928 show that Germany is keeping her place as the second greatest shipbuilding nation, with a gross tonnage increase of 407,534, against over 1,000,000 for Great Britain. Holland comes third with 172,190 tons. During these three months, 57 per cent. of all tonnage built in the world was motor driven.

Rockefeller's Advice.

From New York comes a story concerning John D. Rockefeller which millionaire.

A young man asked his advice as to how best to get on in the world.

"Work hard and set your mind to buy a gold watch," was the reply.

"Yes," queried the listener, "and when you've bought the gold watch, what do I buy a watch for?" replied Mr. Rockefeller, "you buy gun-metal one and start all over again for a motor-car."

"And when you've got the money for a motor car?"

"Well, you remember the watch if you're not a fool, and go on walking to business."

The Highest Point.

The highest point in the world is in Asia, Mount Everest, being 29,141 feet; the highest point in south America is Mount Aconcagua, 23,080 feet; in North America it is Mount McKinley, 20,300 feet; in Africa Kilimanjaro (Kibo Peak); Europe, Mont El Brus, 18,465; while the highest point in Australia, Mount Kosciusko, has an elevation of only 7,328 feet.

"Sincere."

The word "sincere" criticized from two Latin words, "sine cera," which means without wax in the days of ancient Rome, cracked and chipped vases were made as good as new by filling up the cracks from wax. A "sincere" vase was a genuine one, which had no wax introduced to make it look better than it was.

Olive's Courtship

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

Author of "A Cruel Revenge," "A Forbidden Marriage," "A Beautiful Coquette," "The Heiress of Cameron Hall"

CHAPTER XIII.

He could not utter another word save in monosyllables, and his mind began to wander and his eyes were growing duller and more hazy in their expression with each passing instant.

"You have no one else whom you would have me write to?" queried the magistrate, bending over him.

"No," he muttered; "I have no friend in all the world save Rogue, who is suffering like a martyr for my crime."

Surely Heaven might have pitied him lying there, his young life ebbing out, and have let one thought of the poor young bride whom he had just wedded, and who had been parted from him by no cruel a fate, pierce his dull, benighted brain in that awful moment; but it was not to be. Ere the sun had sunk another half hour lower in the western sky, the flickering breath of Oscar Glendenning had grown fainter, and with a last sigh he struggled up in his couch, uttering a name—a woman's name—which they could not quite catch, then fell back on his pillow—dead!

* * * * * *

As the scenes are shifted in a play, dear reader, so must we shift our story. Lowering the curtain here, and ringing it up again on the scene where we left Roger Glendenning, at the time when he had been permitted to leave the couch for a moment to pick up the broken rosebud that had fallen from Olive Kneeland's bodice, as she hurriedly passed, and the terrific explosion which followed, and the horrible conflagration which ensued.

The force of the shock had hurled Roger Glendenning some twenty rods away, almost knocking the life out of his body for an instant. The shock was but momentary, however; the next moment he had struggled to his feet, stunned but unhurt, around him people were lying maimed, bleeding and moaning. The blinding smoke, the great tongues of flame, the hurling rocks and flying cinders almost bewildered him for a moment. Then he began to realize that he must not stand there; that each moment was precious in aiding those about him.

Horses were dashing about him, neighing with frenzy and tramping remorselessly upon what mutilated little children who could not get out of their way. Glendenning tore off his coat quickly, all forgetful in that moment of sorrow and almost dark sorrow that surrounded his own life, and that he was in charge of one of the ministers of the law, and set to work nobly, doing all in his power for the relief of the wounded and dying, carrying them to places of comparative safety, and when a person owed life and limb to his heroic efforts, as, almost fainting from the heat and smoke, he bore them in his strong arms out of the range of the terrible conflagration.

In that hour of peril all outside matters were dropped, and every energy was bent to fighting the mad fury of the flames that were growing in intensity each moment. The fire seemed to fairly leap from block to block along the thoroughfare, and the inmates had barely time to escape with their lives.

At length, thoroughly exhausted, Glendenning was obliged to desist. Then, as he stood there, the full force of his position rushed over his mind—a prisoner, yet he found himself as free and untrammeled as the air he breathed.

Should he give himself up and suffer the inevitable consequence, or take advantage of this most miraculous opportunity Heaven had flung in his way and make his escape? He was innocent of the crime. Why should he make a martyr of himself and suffer for it. Flight would make him appear guilty, but, even as it stood, he had no alternative but to shoulder it to save Oscar, who was to marry Judge Kneeland's daughter, and it had been only since his arrest that he had discovered how sweet was the boon of liberty.

Should he not take advantage of this wonderful opportunity a pitying Heaven held out to him?

He trembled to think of how much valuable time he had lost.

In less time than it takes to tell it, Roger Glendenning hurried quickly away, scarcely taking time to breathe until he had put that portion of the city far behind him.

At one of the street corners which he turned he came upon the alleged to be an old friend—a young man who had for the past two years been stenographer to another judge in the same building with Judge Kneeland.

"Roger Glendenning, as I live!" he exclaimed, in the most intense amazement, for he had supposed him taken away by the officer but a short time since.

Glendenning looked at him and started back, turning deadly pale.

"Is it you, Jack Murray?" he gasped, in a whisper.

"Yes, it is I—Jack Murray, your true friend!" exclaimed the other, grasping his hand warmly. "Thank God you have made your escape! I do not ask how, nor do I want to know. I only know that I believe you are as innocent as a babe of what you are charged. You seem dazed—where are you going?"

"I don't know," muttered Glendenning; "only thought it to get away, anywhere; it does not matter much where I go."

"Come with me," returned the other promptly; "I am on my way to the depot. I am taking my six weeks' vacation, commencing with to-day. I am going to camp out—rough it—with my gun, tramping through the swales of Maryland, and I may even go down into the swamps of Louisiana. Come with me, Glendenning; let me pilot you out of this affair." And drawing Roger's unresisting arm within his own, he carried him off with not much volition on his part.

Glendenning had but a few dollars in his pocket, but his friend was well supplied, and purchased both tickets. Thus, half an hour later, by some strange fate, Roger Glendenning was whirling rapidly southward, leaving the scene of his misery far behind him.

fed him lumps of sugar and petted him with her own fair hands. Once her father had been offered quite a sum for him, but he had remarked, with a smile, "Money could not buy that colt. He is my daughter's property, and she is almost as fond of him as she is of me. I often think—" And little Judge Morrow was to run in the great race! Ah! how ardently he hoped that the gallant little colt would win a fortune for Olive!

He resolved suddenly that he must go to New York in time to get over to Brooklyn to see that race. It was a daring thing to do, to walk blindly into the pit yawning to receive him. But on his heart and soul were there, his body might as well be also, he argued, hopelessly, providing he could procure a disguise which would completely conceal his identity.

Before nightfall this was accomplished, and with a strange feeling of light-heartedness which he was wholly unable to account for, Roger Glendenning boarded the midnight express. He took a sleeper, and it cost him nearly all the money his friend had loaned him. But his thoughts were so turbulent he could not close his eyes all the long night through.

It was early morning when he reached New York, and he could not have restrained the impulse to walk past the hotel where he had read that the judge and his daughter were stopping temporarily had his life depended upon it. Perhaps he might catch a glimpse of her at one of the windows. It was only a faint hope, but he caught at it as a drowning man catches at a straw.

Up and down the length of the street he paced, backward and forward past the hotel, until he grew fearful that he was attracting too much attention. At length he grew desperate and ventured within the hotel and boldly called for Judge Morrow. A few moments later he was seated in the dining-room. How he hoped and prayed that Olive would enter the room! He felt that if he could feast his eyes on her face once more he would be willing, nay, glad to wander off somewhere and die. His very soul yearned for just one glance, with a longing that could not be appeased.

He lingered at the table as long as he could find any possible excuse for doing so. Then, when it was no longer wise to remain, arose slowly and quitted the room. The moment that it she had already breakfasted, or if it had been served in her apartments. He wished he dared make inquiry of one of the waiters who was passing through the corridor.

While he was pondering over this, Olive herself came slowly down the wide hall, her long gown trailing after her with a soft, low rustle. She passed him by so closely that the dark-brown dress she wore brushed his hand. She did not raise her eyes to his face, or she would have seen every dollar of it; ay, his very life's blood, every [illegible] this train of thoughts quite another came to him which alarmed and worried him. With this terrible change in her fortune, how long would his brother Oscar love her? His betrothed would be irksome to him, and he would snap the slight chain of an engagement aside as ruthlessly as he would brush aside a cobweb from his path. Ah! if he but dared go to New York in disguise and see Oscar, and plead with him, if he found him weakening in his vows, to keep his pledge and faith with her! He could readily believe that her beauty had fascinated him, but had she possessed that alone, he quite believed his brother would have passed her by carelessly enough.

Roger was just about to close the paper when another little item concerning the judge came under his eye, and that was to the effect that Judge Kneeland had entered his daughter's horse, Judge Morrow, for the great handicap race which was to come off the following day, and all of the judge's hopes of retrieving his fallen fortunes lay in the issue.

Roger Glendenning bowed his head on his hands, and great tears gathered in his eyes. Little Judge Morrow, the colt that Olive fairly idolized, lay as a sacrifice on the altar of her father's misfortune! He realized how it must have wrung Olive's heart to consent to this, for since the hour of his birth almost she had

In Five MILLION HOMES TONIGHT

There are times when all a mother's love can't soothe a fretful baby. No way of telling just what's wrong, yet something must be done. Castoria time! A few drops, and Baby has dropped off to sleep. Yet this marvelous means of quieting a restless infant is utterly harmless. There is not one ingredient but what all doctors know and approve, and would let you give your baby every day in the week. In fact Castoria is a purely vegetable product. Gas pains, constipation, even diarrhea can be dispelled in this same manner. Castoria is older than you are, but physicians still say "nothing better for babies." An old-fashioned remedy if you count its years, but parents are old-fashioned who still raise babies without its aid! And at least five million modern mothers keep it handy day and night, for twenty-five million bottles were bought last year! Have yours now; don't wait until you need it.

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA

NEW CITIES

THIS MAN is a business prophet. He does not really look into a crystal ball but he reads the future nevertheless and he sees new cities yet unbuilt. He is important in the telephone business.

He judges the future from the facts of the present and it is his job to judge with accuracy. He must judge with accuracy because, in a telephone system, plans must be made for years ahead and millions of dollars are involved.

With a railway there must be tracks and stations before trains can run. With a telephone system there must be conduits and central exchanges before telephones can go in.

To wait until people are clamoring for telephones is too late.

THE BUSINESS PROPHET does not wait. He comes to the management with his charts and graphs and figures and says: "In 1930 the demand in Ontario will be 80,000 new telephones. They will be wanted here and here and here."

Or he says: "Within the next five years the Province of Quebec will need at least forty per cent more exchange capacity."

And the management does not wait either. They know it is up to them to prepare now. If they don't they will be falling down on their job; they will not be keeping pace with the country.

BECAUSE THE BUSINESS PROPHET spoke in time and the management acted promptly there are 1,39,000 telephones being installed in Ontario and Quebec this year. Without them there would be inconvenience and confusion now in thousands of new homes and offices.

Next year the business outlook calls for spending over twenty-seven million dollars to extend and renew the system and plans have been made to do so.

For the next five years the telephone expansion definitely known to be needed in the two provinces means over one hundred million dollars.

FINDING THE MONEY is a problem. It is as great a problem as the complications of engineering and organization.

Every year as the country grows there must be new money ready so that the telephone system may keep pace.

Every year thus far the money has been ready because the policy of the telephone system has been fortunate in attracting the support of conservative and reliable investors who have not been subject to the influence of market fluctuations.

THAT IS HOW the business prophet and his graphs have been made effective. And that is why the telephone management has always met Canadian progress with confidence and enthusiasm.

Published by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada to tell you something about the telephone business and the people in it.

CHAPTER XIV.

There was but a moment of hesitation. Then it was decided to accept his offer, as he was but a trifle heavier than the rider who had been taken off so suddenly. Quickly the change was effected. An instant later the bugle sounded, the paddock gate swung open, and the thousand sounds and cries of the race-track were swallowed up in a deafening roar of applause as the horses came tearing down the track, prancing and cavorting toward the grand stand.

There were thirty thousand faces spread out like a vast sea before him, yet Glendenning saw, at the first glance, but one in all that throng—the face of Olive Kneeland, beautiful face of Olive Kneeland shining like a star before him, guiding him on to victory.

He saw her lean forward and watch the horses intently, and when he saw little Judge Morrow she clasped her hands entreatingly together, tugging deadly pale. She did not even observe the rider, her gaze was riveted so intently upon the horse.

Suddenly he saw her turn and whisper to a young girl sitting beside her, and he recognized her companion at once—sweet, gentle, fair-haired Nannie, Olive's true little friend. And even in that moment the thought came to him how loyal Nannie was to her friend; even the loss of Olive's fortune made no difference to her, and in his heart he blessed Nannie for that quality of sweet and noble sympathy which endeared her so to those who knew her. He looked anxiously about for his brother Oscar, as he grew a little more accustomed to discerning faces at that distance, and as he came toward them, No, Oscar was not with Olive. To the right of her, and leaning over Nannie, his fiancee, was Mr. Armstrong, his face and dark eyes all aglow with excitement. Judge Morrow eagerly, as though he were mentally summing up his chances of success.

Glendenning had no time to lose in further observation. His whole attention must be absorbed by his horse, for they had reached the starting stand, and, amid the wild cheering, the riders were stepping to form the line into the track for the last accomplished. There was an instant of expectancy, then the flag fell, and away they went, a confusion of the curved road like swallows, the gay colors of the riders flashing in the sunshine, and the great race had begun.

For a moment it is one pell-mell rush. On, on they fly, like giant grasshoppers from the beginning of the gray track, until they are but slowly-moving specks in the distance. Then on they come again, thundering past the grand stand at a maddening pace, with Pessara in the lead, a dozen horses dashing like the wind at his heels, and Judge Morrow—little Judge Morrow!—the last in the row of yards behind. A mad shout goes up for Pessara. But the wiser ones murmur that Judge Morrow is running well within himself, and that there is game in the gallant little horse that the rider is holding back with a steady hand, and is sure to be answering shortly. "Judge Morrow! Judge Morrow!"

White to the lips, Olive Kneeland sits and watches Nannie's hand creeps confidingly to hers, cold as lumps of ice, and clasps them gently.

"All of the horses show signs of the terrible strain—all save your little Judge Morrow. He is fresh as a daisy," murmurs Harry Armstrong, hopefully. But Olive does not answer; her lips are quite dumb. So little Judge Morrow running at that frightful pace alone! It stuns her. She feels like sobbing aloud, but the great crowd about her hold her in check. Again the gallant steeds are specks in the distance. Now they pass the curve and are on the homestretch, dashing swiftly on to the finish. Nearer, nearer sounds the thunder of their oncoming hoofs. Thirty thousand people grow mad with wild intensity as they dash swiftly, steadily onward. They are but a hundred yards from the grand stand now, with Pessara still in the van. But the other horses have dropped further and further behind, and little Judge Morrow, who gains steadily, steadily, inch by inch, until he passes those before him, and now there is but a ribbon of daylight between himself and the great Pessara. The excitement grows intense. Nerves are thrilling like stricken strings as down the long lane of white, strained faces dash the racers almost with the rapidity of lightning. Every one rises to his feet in the mad hope of catching a full view of the flyers, and the air rocks, reels, and trembles with the hoarse, delirious cries of thirty thousand throats, hats are tossed into the air like shoals of fish, and faces are white as death.

Glendenning holds neither to the right nor left, but with his keen eyes on the flying horse before him, urges Judge Morrow onward, and the gallant little colt responds to that thrilling voice. He has reached Pessara's flank, and inch by inch he is surely gaining on him.

The mad shouts about him are deafening, but he sees only the white face of Olive Kneeland like a loadstar before him.

Pessara begins to show signs of impatience and distress; the foam covers his chest, and his eyes flash. It is all his rider can do to urge him onward with knee, spur, and lash. There is a supreme effort to come to Pessara and Judge Morrow are side by side—neck to neck, both increasing with every long, lithe, flying stride. Suddenly Pessara falters ever so slightly. Men and women hold their breath. Then, quick as a flash, the thing has gallant little Judge Morrow passes him by a leap. It is done so swiftly, so suddenly, that it takes away the last grain of joy of delight breaks from the vast multitude of spectators.

One instant more, and the cry has deepened into mighty, deafening yell. Little Judge Morrow, with a passionate strain of mighty muscle, grace, and power, has gained a length of balls, like a bird passes under the wire and past the grand stand, and a moment later the victor stands panting and trembling at the spot where they have led Olive Kneeland.

The girl forgets the great throng; the mad excitement; the gallant rider who is won to victory and to fortune forgets everything but the panting, beautiful horse whom the eager throng are crowding and pushing out another wildly to catch a glimpse of. And in the excitement, Roger Glendenning slips away quite unnoticed in the crowd.

The next morning's paper gave a full account of the great race, together with the encouraging report that little Judge Morrow had been sold for a great sum, and the money had been paid cash down on the table to the fair young girl who owned him. Considerable comment was made in reference to the sudden disappearance of the man who had ridden him, and it further stated in the article that it was to be hoped he would put in an appearance at the stables and receive the congratulations, and, better still, the money that awaited him. The same paper also stated that Miss Kneeland would start the Albany boat that evening to join the judge.

Glendenning could never account for the impulse which prompted him to take the same boat, though it cost him the last dollar he had in the world. As soon as he stepped on deck he saw her, standing at the further end of the boat, with her little hands resting lightly on the rail, gazing dreamily into the water. How sweet and fair she looked, and how thoughtful! He looked about for his brother Oscar. He was not there. A sudden fear of Olive's safety, a sudden impatience stirred Roger's heart that he should Knapp—Lakins.

A very pretty wedding took place in the Sandwich United Church, on Wednesday afternoon; October 24th, when Miss Florence Knapp, daughter of Mrs. Harry Albertson, Moscow, became the bride of Mr. John Lakins, son of Mr. George Lakins, Verona. The Rev. J. E. Holmes, pastor of the church, read the services. The bride wore a becoming gown of sapphire blue satin and carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and maiden hair fern. The witness were Mr. and Mrs. John Fralick. The happy couple are at present residing in Sandwich.

Died at Oshawa.

The death occurred at Oshawa on Sunday of Mary Francis Manion, beloved and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Manion, formerly of Napanee. Deceased, who was a quiet, lovable girl, had only been ill a short time, and although everything was done that medical aid and loving hands could do, she passed away in the early hours of Sunday morning, in her sixteenth year. The remains were brought here on Monday and taken to the home of Mr. Manion's sister, Mrs. J. Pretts, Mill street, and the funeral took place on Tuesday morning to St. Patrick's church. The many floral tributes told of the esteem in which she was held by old and young, both in Napanee and Oshawa. Deep sympathy is expressed for the bereaved parents in their great loss.

Fall Assizes.

The Court of Assize opened at the Court House on Tuesday afternoon, His Lordship, Chief Justice Meredith, presiding. Two cases were on the docket, Milsap vs. Ryan, an action brought by Margaret Milsap, of the township of Camden, against Harold M. Ryan, of Port Hope, to recover $2,000, being the amount paid by the said Margaret Milsap to the defendant for thirty shares of stock of Amalgamated Knitters, Limited. This case, with the consent of both parties, was struck out at the opening of court. The second case, Scott vs. Perry, an action by Wm. J. A. Scott of the Village of Newburgh, against Fred a Perry, of Napanee, for $20,000 damages resulting from personal injuries sustained on the 19th November, 1927, by the paintiff, when employed by the defendant, will be tried on Kingston. His Lordship was presented with a pair of white gloves by the sheriff, C. W. Vanderwort and in the course of a brief address congratulated most heartily the county on its absence of crime, also civil cases, and remarked that the County of Lennox and Addington was one of the cleanest counties in the Province of Ontario, an honor that is well merited.

Last Tuesday the members of the Lennox and Addington Local Board Mothers' Allowance Commission attended a Conference with Hon. D. Jamieson, Chairman of the Commission Executive, Toronto, at the City Council Chambers, Kingston. The members of the Leeds, Grenville, Frontenac and Kingston Boards were also present. Dr. Jamieson delivered a full, instructive address explaining the workings of the commission and its rulings, and answered many questions put to him by various members. It was generally conceded that great assistance to the Boards will result from the information imparted by the Governmental Head of the Commission to whom a very hearty vote of thanks was extended. Members from the County in attendance were : Chairman, Mrs. Wesley Wagar, Centreville ; vice-chairman, Mrs. W. G. Swayne, Bath ; secretary, W. G. Wilson, Napanee ; A. C. Tummon, Selby, J. A. United Missionary Service in Trinity Church.

The congregations of St. Andrew's, Grace and Trinity Churches were united in a special service held Sunday night in Trinity Church, the preacher on the occasion being Rev. George Pringle, Mr. Pringle, after graduation from Toronto University, Queen's College, Kingston, and New College, Edinburgh, spent eleven years in the Yukon, was a chaplain at Lens at Passchendaele, and afterwards, from 1920 undertook his mission work about along the North Pacific, British Columbia coast. He has sailed his boat "The Sky Pilot," a sturdy 40-foot gasoline boat, amongst the inlets of the B. C. coast, carrying the gospel, books, medicine and the contagion of a manly, radiant personality, to the lonely lighthouse folks, the loggers isolated settlers and fishermen of these neglected spots. This ministry was described last Sunday night by Mr. Pringle in a way altogether simple, human and unconsciously dramatic. In their commendation of this work of the United Church of Canada, the British Columbia Library Commission have stated, "It simply puts a lump into one's throat to hear the choruses of grateful praise voiced by all sorts of people along the coast for the work of Mr. Pringle." This visit to Napanee has resulted in a greatly quickened interest in the home missionary work of the United church.

DEATHS

THE REMEMBERED GIFT.

"Remember it? I should say I do!" The big man's face beamed with happy recollection. Someone had, in more or less of a business way, spoken of The Youth's Companion. And just the mention of it's name—so far as business was concerned—broke up that meeting. But what fun those busy men had swapping recollections of the days when the arrival of The Youth's Companion was the high spot of the whole week.

Rare, indeed, are the pleasures that we remember so warmly over half a century of years. But The Youth's Companion is still among them.

Isn't there some boy or girl whom you would like to make happy with a gift subscription?

In its new enlarged and improved form as a monthly magazine, The Companion has more to offer its young readers than ever before—a full book-length novel complete in each issue; short stories and serials so thrilling they will never even suspect them of being a "good influence" or the "right kind of reading"—articles by outstanding men and women that will fire their young ambition—comments on current affairs—puzzles, poems, guides to the best in books and moving pictures—special departments for both boys and girls covering their own favorite activities.

You may give some boy or girl a truly fine gift by accepting the following offer:

1. The Youth's Companion, 12 big monthly numbers, and
2. Two extra numbers to new subscribers ordering within 30 days, and
3. A copy of "WE" in 12 colors, framing size 18 x 24 inches. All for only $2.
